

Construction & Real Estate

The construction industry has unique challenges...profit margins, workforce shortages, cash flows and available work all can have a substantial impact on your company's bottom line. Further, as industry regulations become more severe, the cost of compliance will continue to grow.

HW&Co. specialists hold the highest industry credentials attainable, CCIFP, (Certified Construction Industry Financial Professionals). This credential is the only standard that demonstrates a financial manager truly understands the construction business. This allows us to deliver cutting-edge services in accounting, consulting and tax planning – all critical to the construction and real estate industry.
